Story of Your Life

Your father is about to ask me the question. This is the most important moment in our lives, and I want to pay attention, note every detail. Your dad and I have just come back from an evening out, dinner and a show, it's after midnight. We come out onto the patio to look at the full moon. Then I told your dad I wanted to dance, so he harness me and now we're slow dancing, a pair of thirty something wearing back and forth in the moonlight like kids. I don't feel the right chill at all. And then your dad says, "Do you want to make a baby?"

Right now your dad and I have been married for about two years, living on Ellis Avenue, when we move out you'll still be too young to remember the house, but we'll show you pictures of it, tell you stories about it. It's hard to tell you the story of this evening, the night never connected, but the right time to do that would be when you're ready to have children of your own, and we'll never get that chance.

Telling it to you any earlier wouldn't do any good, for most of your life you won't be able to hear such a puny little sound as my name—surely, I remember the scenes of your origin, you'll suggest when you're thirteen.

"The only reason you had me was so you could get a maid you wouldn't have to pay," you'll say thirty, changing the meaning of our conversation.

"That's right," I'll say. "Thirteen years ago I knew the carpets would need vacuuming around mine, and having a baby seemed to be the cheapest and easiest way to get the job done. Now kindly get on with it."

"If you weren't my mother, this would be illegal," you'll say, nothing as you untied the power cord and plug it into the wall outlet.

That will be the last on Belmont Street. I'll live in one strange room both houses: the one you're conceived in and the one you grow up in. Your dad and I will sell the first couple years after your arrival. I'll sell the second shortly after your departure. By then Nelson and I will have moved into our farmhouse, and your dad will be living with what's-her-name.

I know how this story ends, I think about it a lot. I also think a lot about how it began, just a few years ago, when ships appeared in orbit and artifacts appeared in meadows. The government said we'd be talking about them, while the scientists said every possible thing.

And then I get a phone call, a request for a meeting.

I spotted them waiting in the hallway, outside my office. They made an odd couple: one wore a military uniform and a crew cut, and carried an aluminum briefcase. He seemed to be assessing his surroundings with a critical eye. The other one was easily identifiable as an academic: full beard and mustache, wearing corduroy. He was browsing through the overlapping sheets stapled to a bulletin board.

"Colonel Nelson, president?" I asked Nelson with the officer. "Colonel Nelson."

"Dr. Banks. Thank you for taking the time to speak with us," he said.

"Not all my credits to attend the faculty meeting," Colonel Nelson indicated his companion.

"This is Dr. Gary Donnelly, the physicist I mentioned when we spoke on the phone."
